Opening 1 / 10

Hi, everyone. I'm Tasha, and I'm the friend who Beth calls when she needs to be told she's overreacting. For fourteen years, I've done it with love and a great deal of eye contact.

Part 2 2 / 10

Let me tell you about the corn maze. Three Octobers ago, Beth, Carmen, and I went to a farm festival and decided to do the big maze. Beth announced she had a good sense of direction. Carmen and I looked at each other. We said nothing.

Part 3 3 / 10

Forty minutes later, we passed the same scarecrow for the fourth time. By the sixth time, we had named him Gerald. Beth said, calmly, 'We're not lost. We're exploring.' Then a nine-year-old walked past us, said 'The exit is that way,' and kept going.

Part 4 4 / 10

Here is what I want you to know. Beth laughed harder than any of us. She followed the nine-year-old and thanked him. She asked him to be our guide for the rest of the afternoon, and he took the job very seriously.

Part 5 5 / 10

That's Beth. She is never too proud to be lost, and she's never too proud to be helped. Carmen, you were there that day. You were the one who said, 'I think I'd follow her anywhere, even in circles.' I heard you, and I wrote it down in my phone.

Part 6 6 / 10

Beth, you are loud, you are loyal, and you are the only person I know who sends a thank-you note for a thank-you note. You remember every birthday. You also forget your keys at least twice a week. Carmen, you will be the keeper of the spare set, and I wish you luck.

Part 7 7 / 10

Beth, when you told me you were getting married, you called me from a parking lot, and I couldn't understand a word because you were screaming. I screamed back, and my neighbor looked over the fence to check on me.

Part 8 8 / 10

Carmen, thank you for making my friend so happy. She hums when she walks into a room now. She hums! I've known her fourteen years, and I've never heard her hum.

Here is my wish for you both. May you always be lost together, and may you always laugh about it. May there always be a nine-year-old somewhere who knows the way out, and may you always be willing to ask.

Everyone, glasses up, for Beth and Carmen, and for every wrong turn that leads somewhere good.
